LISA DICKENS IS THE LATEST TO JOIN HURST'S EXPANDING TEAM

Following a series of new client wins, the growing tax team at HURST, the Stockport and Manchester accountants and business advisors, has been strengthened by the appointment of Lisa Dickens as associate partner.

After qualifying at Baker Tilly Lisa then held senior positions at Wenham Major LLP in Birmingham, and more recently BJM chartered accountants based in Belfast.

At HURST she will work with a number of high profile clients, providing tax planning advice. She will also work closely with the corporate finance team, specialising in providing transactional tax advice to company owners and directors involved in company buyout and buy in deals.

Said managing partner Tim Potter: "Despite the recession and the doom and gloom in the market, we are bucking the trend and are continuing to actively recruit for both our corporate finance and tax teams. With her calibre and experience Lisa will certainly strengthen the tax offering to high net worth individuals and give vital support to our corporate finance professionals."

Said Lisa: "HURST is a practice with a fantastic reputation as an alternate to the bigger, national firms. I am looking forward to the opportunity to have a more direct, hands-on relationship with clients and making a real contribution by helping them realise their personal and business ambitions."
