HURST LEADERSHIP ACADEMY WILL HELP COMPANY OWNERS TO PROSPER DURING THE RECESSION

A series of seminars to help North West companies survive and prosper during the current recession is planned by Stockport and Manchester-based HURST Accountants.

Delegates attending the HURST “Leadership Academy” series of seminars in April, May and June will learn how it is possible for ambitious companies to manage their way out of misfortune.

Speakers will include leading professionals, financiers and representatives of business organisations. They will show how companies can actually take advantage of the opportunities offered by the current economic downturn.

Seminar topics include: Planning amidst uncertainty - business modelling; Buying businesses; Profit improvement; Tax planning; and Making the most of the grants and funding opportunities available.

Said HURST managing partner Tim Potter: “In times of economic uncertainty many business owners adopt a ‘wait and see’ approach before making strategic decisions. The past, however, has taught us that a downturn can be a defining moment for strong, ambitious companies. Deciding to view the future as an opportunity or a threat can be self fulfilling.

“The expert speakers from the HURST Leadership Academy will give company owners and senior managers the opportunity to learn how to turn the economic downturn to their own advantage and reap the benefits.”

Complimentary places are available at the seminars, which will take place either over breakfast or over lunch at HURST's Stockport office. To book seats, contact Simon Brownbill at HURST, 0161 477 2474, or email: simon.brownbill@hurst.co.uk.
