Cooper Parry further strengthen tax team with the appointment of a new Tax Partner – Mark Pashley

Business Advisers, Cooper Parry have made a significant new signing - Mark Pashley as a Business Tax partner based in Nottingham.

Mark will focus on advising family businesses and entrepreneurial clients in minimising their overall tax burden, as well as being heavily involved in handling the tax issues that come out of transactional deal work.

Before his appointment with Cooper Parry, he was a Director at Tenon where he worked for ten years and before that was at PricewaterhouseCoopers for twelve years.

Mark said about his appointment, "I am delighted to have joined Cooper Parry as a business tax partner and really excited about further bolstering the tax capability in the East Midlands to help achieve the firm's goal of being number one in the region in the core owner managed market of £5-£50m turnover businesses."

He continued, "As a local lad and having focused on the Nottingham marketplace for my entire professional career I am really excited about building a significant portfolio of new clients where my tax knowledge and commercial experience can add real value to their business plans and objectives."

Philip Rogers, Head of Business Tax at Cooper Parry said, "This is a big signing for us, we are thrilled to have Mark on board, alongside the 4 other tax partners that we have, giving us real strength and depth to our tax team across the region"
