Nick Edwards Promoted to Partner

Regional Business advisers, Cooper Parry, are delighted to announce the promotion of Nick Edwards to Partner within its Business Recovery and Insolvency Services team.

Nick joined Cooper Parry as Director in March 2008 having gained considerable experience of Business recovery and restructuring with some of the Country's leading practices including Kroll, PricewaterhouseCoopers and Baker Tilly.

Nick has many years experience and is familiar with all formal recovery processes and their application across many industries. In particular, he has considerable expertise in the retail, high tech and leisure sectors. Nick also has a personal passion for Company Voluntary Arrangements, which enable business owners to negotiate deferred repayment terms with their suppliers to provide a breathing space for the business to be restructured and its ongoing longer term viability to be assured.

About his promotion, Nick said, "I can now help to grow our Business Recovery service to the next level. We now have one of the most experienced teams dedicated and located within the Midlands, and with the growth of our business taking us into London, we are very excited about the service we can now offer to clients."

Commenting on the appointment, Tyrone Courtman head of the firm's Business Recovery and Insolvency Services team said "I am delighted to announce Nick's promotion to Partner. We have increasing opportunities being presented to us and we needed to increase our capability to deal with rising demands. It is clearly indicative that increasingly we find we have more to add. Rather uniquely we represent a genuine alternative to the national firms and are wholly supportive of helping our clients to survive and prosper in an ever more challenging business environment. Combined with increasing opportunities from London, and given our ambitious plans to service our clients needs beyond our three East Midlands offices, Nick's promotion presents a major step in the right direction"
